Subject: Why You Need A Fortress

Dan Kennedy here with a short, albeit critical bit of advice...You need a FORTRESS.

Not one formed from stone with colorful flags waving from the battlements. Yes, that could come in handy should civilization disintegrate into absolute chaos and anarchy, but my money's on the fact we still have time remaining.

No, the fortress you need in place is there to protect TWO THINGS:

Your MIND and your TIME.

When it comes to success and the attraction of wealth, pretty much nothing else is going to matter.

If you can't protect your productivity and you can't protect your thinking, you are hosed. Hostile forces constantly attack – with an array of weaponry including email, phone calls, text messaging, and more. And if you allow the barbarians even an inch across the ramparts, all your goals, plans, and strategies could well wind up in ruins.

When it comes to this war against your productivity, however, you don't have to accept defeat.

In just a few hours, at one pm eastern, my friend Dave Dee will reveal a set of powerful strategies guaranteed to fend off ALL enemies of productivity in a LIVE training entitled:

“How to double your productivity, reach your business and personal goals at lightning speed, and rake in a LOT more

DEEnero!”

You can watch it LIVE here.

These include specific insights I myself have used to create my own FORTRESS – which I term my “Personal Operating System” – and without having them to rely on I can say for certain my fortunes would be in a far sadder state of disrepair and ruin.

The session takes place TODAY at 1PM and only then.
So if you're convinced now that you do indeed need that fortress, you'd be very wise to attend.
